

Simon Happily

Biography

Originally an award-winning radio comedy playwright (and television journalist), Simon Happily first fell onto the comedy stage (quite literally) in 1999.

After becoming a Semi-Finalist in the Daily Telegraph Open Mic Award in 2000, he clocked up a few hundred gigs in the first few years. While he still performs at other clubs, he's focussed much of his efforts on Comedy Camp since founding it in 2001.

Television

Simon's appeared on various television shows including 'Richard & Judy' (Channel 4, both live and pre-recorded items), 'The Big Breakfast' (Channel 4), 'Du'aïne's World' (ITV1), 'Young, Gifted and Broke' (ITV), 'Talent' (Living) and 'Net.Comedy' (Carlton TV). He's also been a guest on Sky News and appeared in a promo for a Sky One show. He also produced and presented an internal corporate video for a multinational broadcast news company that was so well received he did another!

Radio

His radio appearances include 'Mel & Sue' (BBC London), 'The Rowland Rivron Show' (LBC), 'Drivetime' (LBC), 'The Lisa I'Anson Show' (BBC London), and he was a regular panellist on 'The Late Show' (BBC London).

Festivals, Corporate and Private Events

He's hosted comedy at various large pride events including London Mardi Gras, Soho Pride & Purple in the Park and appeared on stage with Lily Savage at the Astoria. In addition to his live comedy club work, he's also booked and hosted various shows for corporate clients and private clients - including a reception for one of the first civil partnerships!
